

COVID-19 BUSINESS UPDATE

Although for the time being, we have had to close the shop to the public, Parchments Print would like to express support for you and your business through the challenging time of COVID-19 and can announce that we have implemented a sensible package of precautionary methods to protect our manufacturing and production operations – thus ensuring continuity of supply to clients is protected with no compromise to service standards and quality.

In advance of Government proposals to restrict exposure, Parchments Print has already actioned a considered resilience plan by moving a number of personnel to remote/home-office operating. This should prove to be a seamless operation & all normal telephone or email contact will be maintained.

The Parchments Print manufacturing operations will be further protected with managed, non-essential restrictions to site access – thereby helping to significantly negate any risk to our team, clients and suppliers.

As print plays a vital role for you when communicating with your customers you can be assured that the Parchments Print team is fully prepared and ready to print, finish, despatch, mail etc, with no disruption to supply.

We all look forward to the news that the risk level has improved and this can all become “yet another challenge the business world has had to manage”.

With kind regards on behalf of all the team at Parchments Print.
